

Therese Andersson

Hi there!

I'm Swedish, and I come from a small town in Sweden called Skövde. I moved to Stockholm to study Interactive Art direction at Hyper Island and graduated in June 2016. I've played handball for a long time, until I changed the course towards digital media and put my handball shoes on the shelf.

I've worked as a photographer, copywriter and SEO-technician, as well as a freelancing graphic designer and tutor in university courses in HTML & CSS, Photoshop and academic writing. Since coming to Hyper Island I've worked more with art direction, graphic design and concept development, and I found that that is what I want to keep doing.

Before, and during, Hyper Island I've worked with both big and small clients, and to help them take their business into the digital future is something I find very exciting. To look at current digital trends and styles and find new ways of using digital solutions to help, and evolve, companies is what I love doing. That is where I want to be.

If you are curious about my previous jobs feel free to shoot me a question and I'll tell you all of my secrets.

Apart from being a professional handball player, design, photography and media are the only things that's been constant interests of mine. I started taking photos when I was a teenager and I haven't stopped yet. I've worked in different roles but design and a strong concept has always been important to me, and has a part in everything I take on. I have experience in many different areas, which is valuable to me as a person since I always want to learn and know more. I want to understand both process, how things work and the end result, it's what drives me as a person.

Wishing you the best of days!

Therese
